To Whom It May Concern:

This letter is my personal recommendation for David Kapuler. I have had the privilege of working with David Kapuler on several education projects. David has also helped me plan online conferences and has been one of my presenters. I found him to be consistently dedicated to ensuring the outcomes exceeded expectations.

Besides being a joy to work with, David is a knowledgeable colleague who is able to provide effective support to educators who are inexperienced in using technology. The teachers enjoy his personable approach and feel as if he really wants to help them. Having worked with several technology specialists, I know how rare it is to find a candidate who is extremely experienced, yet can communicate effectively with staff members. He has successfully developed several presentation websites, e-books, resources, and tools to help educators with technology. The plethora of resources he has created makes him an extremely valuable addition to any institution, because he gladly shares these resources with his staff.

In addition to having the ability to effectively train staff, David goes beyond the call of duty. He develops resources because he simply loves working with technology and seeing teachers integrate technology effectively with students. Moreover, David is a team player who works well with leadership in finding ways to successfully implement goals.

I highly recommend David for your institution. He is a rare find and would make a great asset to any organization.

Sincerely,

Shelly Terrell
